Orthography

DW4I is not meant to be spoken. The language uses 62 characters: digits 0-9, capital letters A-Z, and lowercase letters a-z.

Every word is exactly two letters. Spaces do not separate words in a sentence. Punctuation is not used, and spaces separate sentences.

Grammar

A simple sentences consists of a single verb.

L0

Eating happens.

A subject may be placed before the verb.

XUL0

I eat.

An object may be placed after the verb.

L02z

An apple is eaten.

XUL02z

I eat an apple.

Adjectives follow the words they modify. They may modify any part of speech.

XUL02zAI

I eat a red apple.

Prepositions may be placed before a noun and after a noun or a verb and it's object.

3q97tx

Person in a building

XUL02z97tx

I eat an apple in a building.

Two nouns may be grouped together, in which the first noun is of or pertaining to the second noun.

txPz

Food building

A word or clause may be enclosed with iz, turning it into a noun.

XUy4izLvL02ziz

I want you to eat an apple.

Relative clauses follow the noun they describe and use the relative pronoun hG.

2z3qL0hG

An apple that a person eats

Numbers are written with digits and enclosed with XV. Numbers behave as adjectives.

2zXV72XV

72 apples

Proper names are enclosed with Mm.

XUevMmBillMm

I am Bill.
